Class groupings

The class grouping this year is the same with previous year.

Indonesian A is a class intended to the advanced or intermediate students who has developed the skills well and has practiced the language as their mother tongue or has used the language for many years.

Indonesian B is a class for the students who rarely speak the language, exposed to only daily basic vocabulary, understands oral instructions better than written instructions, find difficulties to comprehend more complex words, to form complex sentences, and to comprehend longer reading passages.

These two groups above will have a slight difference in the syllabus aimed for what is best for our students.

Indonesian Foundation is a class intended for foreign students who has no or very little knowledge of the language.

Textbook
